The Honorable Pierre-Richard Prosper is counsel with Arent Fox LLP in Los Angeles, CA. His practice centers on international government relations and trade, mediation and internal assessments, and investigations on behalf of government entities and companies. He advises foreign governments on improving their legal capacity and assists them on commercial matters.

Prior to joining Arent Fox, Ambassador Prosper was the U.S. Ambassador-at-Large in charge of the Secretary of State’s Office of War Crimes Issues. He was appointed in 2001 by President George W. Bush and, after being unanimously confirmed by the U.S. Senate, served until October 2005.

As the President’s envoy and senior diplomat, Ambassador Prosper conducted diplomatic negotiations and consultations with heads of state, foreign ministers and senior government officials from more than 60 countries. He also engaged foreign parliaments and multilateral and international organizations to build support for U.S. policies. He reported to the Secretaries of State Colin Powell and Condoleezza Rice and advised the President of the United States, Secretary of Defense, Attorney General, National Security Advisor, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, White House Counsel and other senior U.S. government officials. After September 11, 2001, Ambassador Prosper played a key role in developing policy to confront terrorism. He was also the chief U.S. negotiator and lead diplomat responsible for engaging nations regarding their nationals held in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba and captured by U.S. forces in combat.

Ambassador Prosper served as Special Counsel and Policy Advisor on War Crimes Issues at the U.S. Department of State, Office of the Secretary of State, from 1999-2001. He was detailed from the U.S. Department of Justice, where he served as Special Assistant to the Assistant Attorney General for the Criminal Division.

From 1996 to late 1998, Ambassador Prosper was a war crimes prosecutor for the UN International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. While working and living in Rwanda for nearly three years in the aftermath of the genocide, he was appointed lead trial attorney and prosecuted the first-ever case of genocide under the 1948 Genocide Convention.

Prior to his role at the UN, Ambassador Prosper was an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California in Los Angeles, assigned to the Narcotics Section, Drug Enforcement Task Force where he investigated and prosecuted major international drug cartels. Prior to becoming Assistant U.S. Attorney, Ambassador Prosper was Deputy District Attorney for Los Angeles, California. He received his Juris Doctor degree from Pepperdine University School of Law and his Bachelor’s degree from Boston College.
M. Cherif Bassiouni is a Distinguished Research Professor of Law at DePaul University where he has taught since 1964. He is also president emeritus of DePaul College of Law’s International Human Rights Law Institute. Since 1988, Professor Bassiouni has served as the President of the International Institute of Higher Studies in Criminal Sciences in Siracusa, Italy, and Honorary President of the International Association of Penal Law in Paris, France from 1989 to 2004.

In 1999, Professor Bassiouni was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for his work in the field of international criminal justice and for his contribution to the creation of the International Criminal Court. He has received the following medals: Medal Beccaria, Spain (2009); Knight of the Grand Cross (Cavaliere di Gran Croce), Italy (2006); Order of the Academic Palms, Commander, France (2006); Grand Cross of the Order of Merit, Commander, Federal Republic of Germany (2003); Legion d’Honneur, Officer, France (2003); Order of Lincoln of Illinois, United States of America (2001); Grand Cross of the Order of Merit, Austria (1990); Order of Sciences (First Class), Egypt (1984); Order of Merit (Grand’Ufficiale), Italy (1977); and Order of Military Valor (First Class), Egypt (1956).

Professor Bassiouni has also received numerous academic and civic awards, including the Special Award of the Council of Europe (1990); Defender of Democracy Award, Parliamentarians for Global Action (1998); The Adlai Stevenson Award of United Nations Association (1993); the Saint Vincent DePaul Humanitarian Award (2000); and the Silvia Sandano Humanitarian Jurist Award, Italy (2008). He has honorary Doctor of Law degrees from the University of Torino (Italy), Pau (France), National University (Ireland), Niagara University (USA), and a Doctorate of Humane Letters from Catholic Theological Union (USA).

Professor Bassiouni is the author of 32 and editor of 47 books, and the author of 241 articles on a wide range of legal issues, including international criminal law, comparative criminal law and international human rights law. His publications have been published in Arabic, Chinese, Farsi, French, Georgian, German, Hungarian, Italian, Russian and Spanish. Several of his publications have been cited by the International Court of Justice, the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia, the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, the U.S. Supreme Court, and a number of state supreme, U.S. appellate and federal district courts.
Colloquy Presenters

He was Director for Afghanistan at the National Security Council (2003), Senior Advisor in the State Department’s Office of e-Diplomacy (2002), Senior Advisor to John Negroponte, United States Ambassador to the United Nations (2001-2002), Deputy Director of the State Department’s Office of Chinese and Mongolian Affairs (1999-2001), and Special Assistant to Stephen Sestanovich, Ambassador-at-Large and Special Representative for the Newly Independent States (1997-1998).

Symposium Panelists

Juan Carlos Botero
Rule of Law Index Director
World Justice Project

Juan Carlos Botero currently serves as director of the World Justice Project’s Rule of Law Index. Botero’s current work, and his prior experience at the World Bank and Yale University, focuses on the development of indicators used to measure performance of institutions in countries around the world. Botero’s work involves utilizing the Index, a quantitative assessment tool designed by the World Justice Project, to measure the extent to which countries around the world adhere to the rule of law. Botero’s work also helps to provide detailed information regarding a variety of dimensions of the rule of law, which enables policymakers and other users to assess a nation’s adherence to the rule of law in practice, identify a nation’s strengths and weaknesses in comparison to similarly situated countries, and track changes over time. Prior to working with the World Justice Project, Botero served in roles including chief international legal counsel of the Colombian Ministry of Commerce, deputy chief negotiator of the U.S.-Colombia Free Trade Agreement, director of the Colombian Government Trade Bureau in Washington, D.C., member of the Advisory Board of the Colombian Antitrust and Consumer Protection Agency, director of the Instituto de Ciencia Politica, and judicial clerk at the Colombian Constitutional Court. Jasteena Dhillon is an international lawyer who has worked in international development and conflict environments since 1994. During her years working in countries such as South Africa in the mid 90s, as well as the Balkans, Indonesia, Sri Lanka, Iraq and Sudan, she has been confronted with the reality of how justice is carried out on the ground and focused on identifying key players in the process. Her work in Afghanistan, as it has been in Iraq and Sudan, is aimed at cultivating local systems of customary justice and building a state system that gives due regard to local values and conceptions of justice. Before joining Harvard, Dhillon worked at NATO as an advisor on justice & reconciliation and civil-military interaction in Afghanistan and Sudan as a way to facilitate civil-military interaction.

Elise Groulx Diggs
President of the International Criminal Defence Attorneys Association (ICDAA); Founding President of the International Criminal Bar (ICB)

Elise Groulx Diggs was a founder of the International Criminal Defence Attorneys Association in the late 1990s in Montreal, Canada. When the International Criminal Court was being organized at The Hague, the framers’ emphasis was on its independent judiciary and independent prosecutors. Groulx was one of the few to view a competent defense bar as a priority. To that end, she traveled to New York, to Rome and to The Hague to lobby on behalf of the Third Pillar of justice. Her efforts did not win her any popularity at first, but through her tenacious efforts, support grew, and in 2002, she led the international team that created the International Criminal Bar. Groulx Diggs worked previously as a legal aid lawyer.
